

ATP Max With Peak ATP

The Krebs cycle is the hub of aerobic metabolism, connecting carbohydrates, fats, and proteins to ATP production—which fuels every process in the body, from muscle contraction to neurotransmission. ATP is the fuel that the mitochondria needs to do its job. Over time this cycle gets depleted and may result in low energy and fatigue issues. ATP Max supports a healthy Krebs Cycle (AKA Citric Acid Cycle) and may be especially beneficial to those needing energy while coming off of caffeine addiction. It may also be used as a pre-workout and energy boost in the daytime before 4pm.

PEAK ATP® (Adenosine Triphosphate)

- Provides bioavailable ATP to fuel mitochondria, enhancing cellular energy generation.
- Supports stamina, endurance, and overall vitality by improving energy availability for tissues.
- Assists in muscle recovery and replenishment of energy stores after physical activity.
- Supports circulatory efficiency by enhancing energy delivery to cells and tissues.
- Optimizes cellular performance for metabolic balance and resilience.

Magnesium Orotate

- Supports balanced energy production by aiding enzymatic reactions at the cellular level.
- Contributes to healthy muscle function and relaxation, supporting endurance and recovery.
- Promotes cardiovascular efficiency by helping maintain vascular tone and healthy circulation.
- Supports nervous system balance, helping ease tension and encouraging restorative rest.
- Optimizes overall cellular performance, aiding metabolic balance and tissue resilience.
